

The Sun.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1863.

THIRTY-SIXTH YEAR.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Despatches to The Sun.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.

Mr. Delmar's financial statement has been thoroughly examined at the Treasury Department by competent arithmeticians, under direction of Secretary McCulloch, who have ascertained that he omitted in his exhibit the cash balance on hand on the 20th June last, amounting to one hundred and five millions of dollars, which, of course, forms part of the resources of the Government. He estimated the receipts at $21,600,000, and the expenditures at $17,600,000, but omitted the balance on hand, which, added to the estimated receipts, gives $29,200,000. Acting Senator estimates the receipts from exports in the six months ended on January 1, 1863, at $2,000,000. The sum for the first three months of that time, ending Sept. 30, have been over $2,000,000, and for the six months will be at least $10,000,000, instead of $7,000,000 as he estimated. Several other gross errors appear in Delmar's statement, but these are the principal ones reported to the Secretary. In 15 days the complete tabular statement in proper form will be submitted, duly authenticated, as some of De Muy's friends claim that these denials are published without official authority. Mr. David A. Wells, now in Norwalk, Conn., is also preparing an answer to Delmar's statement, and has not abandoned the cause, as reported. There has already been forwarded to him a large amount of evidence from the records of the Treasury Department, which he will digest and condense, and the result will be given to the public as soon as completed. It will be compared with the books of the Treasury, and certified to by responsible officials, which will leave no doubt as to its correctness.

CONTRACTS.

The contract for printing postage stamps, which was to have been awarded October 1, is still held in abeyance. The contract for carrying the overland mail to California, which expired on the 30th of last month, has been suspended since to another contractor, who declined it as a reward of having made so low a bid. The Postmaster-General will probably award it to the next highest bidder.

The recommendation of the committee, that the citizens should decorate their streets and dwellings, has been faithfully carried out. In Chestnut street there has been no such an exhibition of colors since the capture of Richmond.

The leaders of the revolution are acting together in perfect accord.
